Spuyten Duyvil, United States, 2014. Paperback. Book Condition: New. 229 x 152 mm. Language: English . Brand New Book  Print on Demand .Poetry. If there s such a thing as fierce Buddhism, Katherine Hastings NIGHTHAWKS finds it. Here is nature in minutely observed, embroidered detail, juxtaposed with terse and stark observations keyed from Rexroth s holiness of the real. Hastings is unafraid: she writes fearlessly of subjects such as the slaughter of children at an elementary school in Connecticut, the death of a young black man in a subway station, and opens a brave and unblinking lens on a lover s cancer. In backdrop, though, always: the steadiness of nature flourishing, brilliant colors amid the unanswered questions. Gerald Fleming Rooted in what Hastings calls the momentary forever, these marvelous poems, so rich with detail and so full of duende, explore the paradoxes of transience. Yes, the poet reminds us: The alarm is set and ticking for each least thing in the living world: A boy made in the image of Lorca; turkey vultures. with wings like shredded violins. Still, the eyes of the world (eyes of the poet!) are always hungry. ; so the poet must read every tune placed in [her] beak // where the lust of one tear holds / every note of joy, of sorrow / trembling under the stars. And these new poems do insist on inhabiting hard realities a beloved s cancer diagnosis; the public murder of an innocent young man by a police officer but also, in Perseid From a Park Bench, two lovers wish on a meteor falling through the night sky, and Hastings reminds us: We humans do this, place hope on a ball of dust passing through a comet s tail. Susan Kelly-DeWitt These poems capture a double exposure where...
