Not illustrated. 1878 Excerpt: .and then after a time the reader s bell rang, and Alec came forward to his little desk and began: By Redfcrn s aid I managed to walk downstairs, and then, once in the library, it seemed as if a great point had been gained, and that all else was easy enough. The boys forgot, however, that although I might try to conceal my pain, I could not conceal the pallor of my face, which told plainly enough that I was suffering. The head master saw my distressed face in a moment, and came over very thoughtfully and asked the cause of my illness. I told him I thought if I lay down for an hour or so I should be better, and he immediately ordered Redfern to take me back to my room. This was most welcome. I hope you don t think I m making a fuss about nothing! I said to him, as we walked back together. Oh no! he answered at once, I can see you are looking very ill. I wish I could do anything for you. I don t want the other fellows to think me a coward, I said, anxiously. No fear of their doing that! said Redfern, laughing. They all say you are a regular brick, to have borne up as you have done. This comforted me, for I was anxious that they should not think me childish and unable to stand my own share of hardship. We...
