Not illustrated. 1846 Excerpt: .in a right light; for every one who knows you is aware of your failing. If young people only knew the misery that pride has inflicted on mankind, they would start back from it as from a viper. A sparkling shirt-pin has cost many a boy his character, and a glittering pair of earrings has ruined the reputation of many a thoughtless girl; for ornaments and smart clothing lead into light company, and light company leads to ruin. How is it likely, Harry, that you will work and help your poor father as you ought to do, if you give way to the foolish conceit of adorning your person. Every one who knows your situation must be struck with your appearance. Pride is a bad companion to the rich, but it is a much worse one to the poor. To be humble is to be safe, but to be proud is to be in danger. What is it that you are looking forward to, that will warrant the high opinion you appear to entertain of yourself? Both the word of God and the experience of man agree, that Pride goeth before destruction, and an haughty spirit before a fall, Prov. xvi. 18. The proud in their pomp, and the vain in their folly, Amid all their plans disappointment must know; Their objects arc selfish, their ends are unholy, Their pleasure will shortly be turn d into woe. Repining awaits them in every condition, Though hope, like...
