Brand New Book  Print on Demand .Excerpt from The Leeds Institute of Science, Art, and Literature: Historical Sketch, 1824-1900 The Leeds Mechanics Institution was among the first of its kind to be established in this country. It originated in the year 1824, when two rooms, one for the library and the other for the classes, were taken in a house at the back of Park Row, on part of the site now occupied by Messrs. Marshall and Snelgrove s premises. The promoters of the Leeds Institution undertook to supply at a cheap rate, to the different classes of the community, instruction in the various branches of science, which are of practical application to their trades or occupations, by the following means, viz.: - Circulation of scientific books, classes in the higher branches of Arithmetic, Mathematics, Mechanical Drawing, and the principles of Mechanics and Chemistry, public lectures, and the constant display of models and machines, scientific apparatus and instruments. This liberal programme was carried out in such a manner as to cause Lord Brougham to cite Leeds Mechanics Institution, in his well-known pamphlet, as an example to be followed by other towns. The first President was Mr. Benjamin Gott, the grandfather of the present Bishop of Truro. The Leeds Literary Institution was established in 1834, in Commercial Buildings, with the object of supplying books for popular reading, which were not included in the library of the Mechanics Institution. An Exhibition held in 1839, in the Music Hall, realised 1,825, and with this sum, and donations afterwards received, it was decided to purchase the premises in South Parade, built for a Hall of Science, and which are now occupied by the Young Men s Christian...
