Brand New Book ***** Print on Demand *****.Excerpt from Distributed Lag Models of Response to a Communications Mix This paper is concerned with the problem of measuring market response to a communications mix - the various means which a firm employs to transmit sales messages to potential buyers. Distributed lag models are applied to time series data for an ethical drug to estimate the short-run and long-run effects on market share of expenditures made for journal advertising, direct mail advertising, samples and literature, and personal selling. Important differences were found among the communications variables with respect to the magnitude and over-time pattern of effect each had on market share. The managerial implications of the findings and the contribution of this type of measurement to the evolution of marketing information systems are discussed.
