Brand New Book  Print on Demand .Excerpt from The Technology of Law: A Condensus of Maxims, Leading Cases and Elements of Law; Leading Questions and Propositions of the Law Adjusted to Its Technics The author assumes the law a science; that sciences have their germs or technics, from which they are developed. In an introductory chapter we point out that the law is written around its maxims and leading cases, hence we call them technics; from this the work is named. By arrangement and employment of these, we reach our condensation, one of the leading features of this work. This constitutes a universal index, next illustrated, after which we present technic features of fundamental and far reaching advantage. From an ordinary library we may select many combinations of volumes, each presenting in common some leading discussion, e.g., 3 Gray s Report; 63 Am. Dec; Bige. Lead. Cas. Torts; Redf. Lead. Cas. Railways;2 Thomp. Neg.; Laws. Lead. Cas. Simp.;1 Am. L.C; Brooms Maxims, eight volumes, besides our own work. Upon painstaking investigation, we find in each of these volumes a valuable principle, to-wit: the...
